RONDOUT CREEK BRIDGE OPENED FORMALLY BY GOVERNOR MILLER

GOVERNOR NATHAN L. MILLER.

NEW YORK STATE HIGHWAY BRIDGE OVER RONDOUT CREEK.

HERBERT S. SISSON, State Commissioner of Highways.

MOST IMPORTANT LINK IN EASTERN ROAD SYSTEM

Rondout Creek Bridge Fills the Gap in Greatest Road System in the East, of Which Kingston is a Center—History and Statistics of the New Bridge.

The opening of the Rondout Creek Bridge today not only marked the realization of a half century of dreams and hopes of thousands of residents of Ulster county, but as an important link in the highway system of the state of New York it makes possible the further development of automobile transportation which has been held in check by the little chain ferry known as the Stillpoint.

To realize how important a link is the New York state highway system is formed by the new Rondout Creek Bridge it is not necessary to study a highway map. Motor car transportation has developed during the past few years at a rate undreamed of by the men who have been foremost in developing the automobile industry. Both nature and the state of New York have decreed that one of the two principal highway routes connecting Buffalo and the West with New York city shall pass through Kingston.

On such route follows the Hudson river to Albany and thence through the Mohawk valley westward and so on to Buffalo. The river route provides two highways, one paralleling the east bank from New York city; the other passing first through New Jersey to Suffern, Orange county, New York, thence northeasterly to Newburgh and paralleling the west bank of the river to Kingston and so on to Albany. Or Kingston may be reached from Newburgh by way of Modena, New Paltz and Rifton, and within a short time a connecting link will be provided between New Paltz and the Hudson river at Highland by the concrete road now under construction there. It is possible, of course, to go westward from Suffern, but the road leads to Middletown from which place the natural outlet is by way of the valley of the Rondout to Kingston.

The other route from New York to Buffalo and the West follows the Erie canal and thence follows the Catskill mountain scenic route westward to Oneonta and Binghamton, whence it passes through the Southern tier and so on to Buffalo.

Other routes are possible, but they are infrequently used in comparison with the routes mentioned. They are difficult to negotiate because the grades and highways are not in the same class with the highways leading to Kingston.

From Philadelphia to New England and Canada, the natural route is that which follows the old Indian trails through the Delaware Water Gap and thence through the valley of the Rondout to Kingston. And the natural route which was followed by the Aborigines has been adopted in highway construction, so it becomes apparent why Kingston naturally receives such a tremendous amount of automobile traffic at all seasons when powerful motors are capable of driving their cars over the highways of sound construction and easy grades.

all divert traffic bound for Kingston, so it is natural that Kingston should become the center for motor vehicle traffic from all sections of the New England and Middle Atlantic states. Kingston naturally is the hub, from which radiates the most important highway system of the Eastern United States. Besides the roads already mentioned, there radiates from Kingston the Rosendale road extending into the fertile and beautiful valley of the Wallkill, making easily accessible the world famous Lake Mohonk and the heart of the Shawangunk Mountains, whose outlet from the western slope of that mountain range is the Rondout valley through which extends to Kingston the Ellenville.

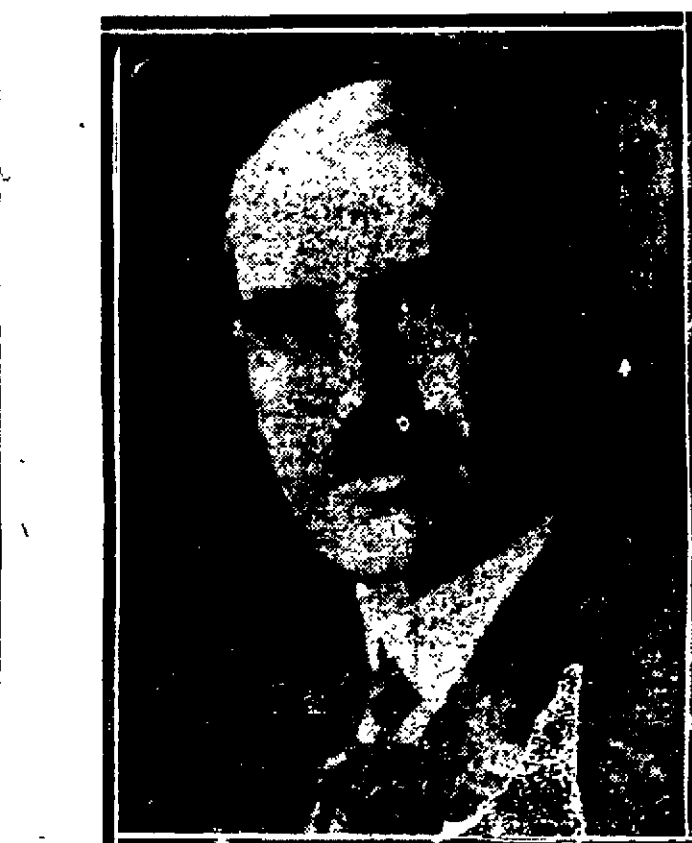

SENATOR CHARLES W. WALTON.

ASSEMBLYMAN SIMON R. VAN WAGONER.

Who introduced and secured the passage of the appropriation bill, later signed by Governor Smith, making the building of the bridge possible.

MAJOR FREDERICK STUART GREENE. Former State Commissioner of Highways, under whose administration plans for the bridge were drawn, the contract awarded and construction begun.

Kingston highway already described. To the west of Kingston, of course, is the beautiful Ashokan reservoir, with its immense wealth of beauty, tourists from all parts of the world. The unusual shipping advantages of Kingston, by four railroads and several steamboat lines, long have made this city the natural outlet not only of manufacturers but during the summer and autumn of that large and productive fruit-growing region contiguous to Kingston on the south.

The natural trend of traffic to and through Kingston resulted in discussion for many years of a bridge which would abolish the nuisance of crossing the Rondout creek by the little chain ferry known as the Stillpoint. To cross the creek on a bridge has been the dream of the oldest living inhabitants of Ulster county. People in Kingston and in Port Jervis have been particularly interested in the project but there was more talk than action and the close of each year found the bridge dream no nearer realization, until ten years ago when Philip Elting drafted.

Andrew J. Cook introduced and the state legislature passed the bill which made a bridge across the Rondout creek a part of the state highway system. The bridge in its present form was not considered probable at first, and early plans included a bridge either of the draw type or the vertical lift bridge, crossing at or near the site of the present ferry slips of the Stillpoint. Objections to these types of bridges as well as the location were numerous because of the amount of navigation in the creek, and both plans were abandoned.

Actual construction of the bridge was delayed by many problems and through many excuses. Even after the site was definitely determined there were delays because of changed plans. Then the World War came and there were new difficulties to be surmounted. Finally Mayor Frederick Stuart Greene became head of the state highway department and through his determination to see the bridge actually constructed and part of the state highway system the present suspension bridge, patterned upon plans similar to the Brooklyn bridge, was decided on.

Plans were drafted, estimates were made and construction work made rapid progress. The work has been done especially under Mayor Greene's administration was continued with unabated fervor under the administration of State Highway Commissioner Herbert S. Sisson when he assumed office and made today's celebration possible.

From time to time The Freeman has published various facts concerning actual construction of the bridge, and these facts are again summarized as follows:

Cost—About $700,000, which is paid by the state.

Length—1,145 feet—more than one-fifth of a mile.

Height—55 feet above mean high water.

Weight—About 3,000 tons, including anchorages, steel trusses, cable work and flooring.

Grade—Five per cent from the Abel street approach to the center of the bridge; one-fifth of one per cent from the center of the bridge to the Esopus approach.

Anchorages—Sunk 65 feet below grade and set in concrete.

Towers—Built of steel, rest on concrete piers, each 153 feet above the piers. The tower on the Esopus side is twenty feet higher than on the Rondout side, because the concrete pier is that much higher which was necessary on account of the grade. Each tower contains about 250 tons of steel.

Cables—Two cables from which the bridge is suspended, each cable being composed of 1,571 wires, each wire being capable of supporting a weight of three tons. The weight of the cables and suspenders is about three hundred tons.

Trusses—Weigh about 250 tons. Roadway—Twenty-two feet wide and constructed of concrete.

Sidewalks—One on each side of the roadway seven feet and six inches wide but on account of the trusses of the bridge being in actual width of four feet and four inches each.

Rivets—Sixty-four thousand rivets used in riveting the steel work together.

Reinforcing rods—Eighty tons of reinforcing rods used.

Where Formal Opening Ceremonies Take Place After an Address by Governor Miller—Commissioner Sisson Opens the Bridge Temporarily to Pedestrians—Esopus People Celebrate With Fireworks Display This Evening.

WHY WE CELEBRATE BRIDGE UNOPENED

Bad Weather, Accident to Machinery, Unexpected Difficulties in Road Building Delay Completion Beyond Date That Was Fixed When Celebration Day Was Set.

The Rondout Creek Bridge was "formally opened" this afternoon to foot passengers. Then it was closed until the finishing touches can be put on and the approach on the Esopus side made passable. There is a reason for this premature celebration—several reasons, in fact.

When the celebration was originally planned by representatives of the city and county governments and several civic bodies, called together by the Chamber of Commerce, the program was outlined and arrangements made so far as possible until such time as a date could be fixed.

On repeated assurance from representatives of the contractors and the state highway department that the bridge would be passable, although not completed, by Thanksgiving Day, Governor Miller was invited to visit Kingston and make the principal address on a date agreeable to him. He found it possible to come on November 29 and that date was fixed and announced.

Almost continuous rain set in, delaying work on both the bridge and the Esopus approach. A machine used in winching the cable toppled over, was broken and had to be replaced, causing further unavoidable delay.

The date having been fixed and announced, it was impossible to make a change and the formal opening plans were proceeded with.

The bridge is here. It will be open to traffic just as soon as possible. The Esopus approach will be passable as soon as the bridge is ready. The approach will not be finished until spring which is in one way fortunate, as the various hills will have a chance to be covered with snow during the winter, so the road will be in better condition for the final surfacing.

In the near past, the old Stillpoint ferry, which was a wooden one, was a great nuisance. It was a small ferry, and it was a great nuisance to the people of Kingston. It was a great nuisance to the people of Kingston. It was a great nuisance to the people of Kingston.

Now Build a Bridge. A section of the Rondout Creek Bridge which was opened today is shown in one of the upper photographs of the L. S. Wagoner & Co. building and has not yet reached its final position. The photograph shows the bridge in its present position, and it is a great nuisance to the people of Kingston.

Preceded and followed by state troopers on motorcycles, who had accompanied him from Albany, Governor Miller arrived in Kingston by automobile early this afternoon, and was met by a squadron of 24 mounted state troopers who escorted him to the armory where the Rondout Creek Bridge celebration luncheon was in progress. Fully 600 persons attended the luncheon which was served in the drill room of the armory.

Judge Joseph M. Fowler presided as toastmaster and introduced the speakers after the luncheon. At the bridge Major Canfield presided and on and the approach on the Esopus side made passable. There is a reason for this premature celebration—several reasons, in fact.

county and the state of New York in general, and of the city of Kingston and town of Esopus in particular, is a distinction that I prize most highly.

While everybody for many years has conceded the ever increasing necessity for the bridge, insurmountable obstacles to its construction always seemed to loom up in the distance. Committees of earnest citizens have been appointed from time to time to wait upon the governor and members of the legislature and urge the adoption of appropriate legislation—which was a first essential—but all their efforts were without avail. It was not until 1912 that a bill was passed by the legislature and signed by the governor that laid the foundation for this day's celebration. While I had the honor, as your representative, to introduce and father the bill in the assembly, there is no man to whom more credit is due for the success of this project than the Hon. Philip Elting. It was in his fertile mind that the basic idea of a bill, that would reduce the objections of the opponents of such a measure to the minimum, first originated.

It has been said that we are a nation of dreamers. Well, this is the generation when the dreams of the past become realities. Today's celebration signifies the realization of the dreams, the hopes—and I might even say—the prayers of all who have the interest and welfare of our county at heart.

Washington dreamed of a nation great and glorious, where life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness should be the right of every man, and he beheld the embodiment of his dreams in the birth of the United States of America. There were for him discouragements, difficulties and dire moments that threatened the very existence of the new born state. But undaunted and undiminished, he persevered until success crowned his efforts and the nation he did more to create than any other man, has far surpassed the fancy of even his fondest dream. Lincoln dreamed of a time when the people of this country, one and in-

Capsules for Relieving Indigestion

J. A. LeBlanc, of Verdun, P. Q., Canada, has had a delightful experience. For the first time in years he knows the pleasure of eating the rich foods he likes which formerly he could not touch because of indigestion and distress.

He writes: "As is usually the custom in Canada, great spreads of food are prepared for the holiday season. Always on these occasions I have had to be very careful in the selection of portions that would not distress my stomach. For many years I have had to deny myself the pleasure of good things to eat.

"However, during the last Christmas season, I was prevailed upon to indulge in whatever I so desired and to follow my meals with one or two of Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules. So I proceeded to eat practically everything that appealed to me and took at the finish of each meal one and sometimes two of the capsules, with the result that for the first time in many years, I was not troubled in the least with my stomach, and in fact never felt quite as well as I do now. Therefore, I highly recommend the 'Little Wonder'.

Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules relieve indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, catarrh of the stomach, acid stomach, biliousness, heartburn and heaviness and dizziness after eating. They are easy to take. Simply place one in your mouth and take a swallow of water. Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules are made of pure gelatin which promptly dissolves upon reaching the stomach, freeing the contents to do their work in restoring the digestive organs to normal. Quick, sure relief is guaranteed or money refunded.

Florence Reed

And the Most Brilliant Assemblage of Broadway Stars that ever appeared in any motion picture in the entire history of the industry.

Scenes of splendor, from the ancient arenas of Rome with their sensational gladiatorial combats to the quiet English countryside, the wild dances of the Apaches in Paris—the lavish homes where wealth and love are chased—all this and more you will see in a succession of startling scenes, all told in a gripping story of the power of good over evil. It's the photo drama in which the great Florence Reed plays four distinct roles, which the National Board of Review characterized as "Done in a manner recalling the acting of a Sarah Bernhardt or a Modjeska."

Have this Gift delivered—now
From your Heating Engineer
THINK of it this way.

Every winter that you shiver in an ill-heated home is a winter lost.

Why not decide right now before Christmas that she shall have the finest gift imaginable—a home warmed all over just as perfectly as the larger heating plants of this company warm the White House itself.

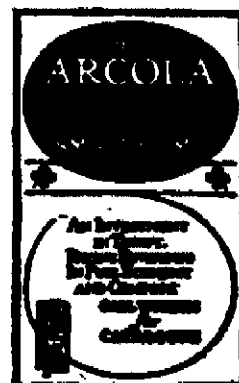

She can have this comfort as a gift from your Heating Engineer. ARCOLA is a gift in a very real sense. It pays for itself in the fuel it saves!

There is still time. Your Heating Engineer can have ARCOLA installed, filling your home with healthful, hot-water heat, before Christmas morning.

A quiet, scientific workman will come and put ARCOLA to work, leaving nothing but happiness behind.

Comfort is worth having! One-third of your fuel is worth saving! For her sake see your Heating Engineer today.

The red and yellow card at the right is the sign of a Heating or Sanitary Engineer (you used to call him Steamfitter or Plumber) who can show you ARCOLA. Look for it in his window. It will pay you to consult him twice a year as you do your Doctor or Dentist. His report on your heating and plumbing costs little. It may save much.

EATS WHAT HE LIKES FIRST TIME IN YEARS

J. A. LeBlanc, of Canada, Gives Credit to Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules for Relieving Indigestion

J. A. LeBlanc, of Verdun, P. Q., Canada, has had a delightful experience. For the first time in years he knows the pleasure of eating the rich foods he likes which formerly he could not touch because of indigestion and distress.

He writes: "As is usually the custom in Canada, great spreads of food are prepared for the holiday season. Always on these occasions I have had to be very careful in the selection of portions that would not distress my stomach. For many years I have had to deny myself the pleasure of good things to eat.

"However, during the last Christmas season, I was prevailed upon to indulge in whatever I so desired and to follow my meals with one or two of Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules. So I proceeded to eat practically everything that appealed to me and took at the finish of each meal one or sometimes two of the capsules, with the result that for the first time in many years, I was not troubled in the least with my stomach, and in fact never felt quite as well as I do now. Therefore, I highly recommend the 'Little Wonder'."

Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules relieve indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, catarrh of the stomach, acid stomach, biliousness, heartburn and heaviness and dizziness after eating. They are easy to take. Simply place one in your mouth and take a swallow of water. Jacques' Little Wonder Capsules are made of pure gelatin which promptly dissolves upon reaching the stomach, freeing the contents to do their work in restoring the digestive organs to normal. Quick, sure relief is guaranteed or money refunded.

OUR POOR WRITERS.

It is only to be expected that Scandinavians should get the Nobel prize whenever there seems to be anything like sufficient excuse, but a complaint of favoritism is now based on the fact that the award in literature has gone to France for the fourth time and never once to the United States. Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root and Woodrow Wilson have won the peace prize in turn, the physics prize has come to Dr. Albert A. Michelson, the medical research prize to Dr. Alexis Carrel, and the chemistry prize to Prof. T. W. Richards. But American literature has failed to win recognition. Is this because of relative inferiority, because no American author has risen above a high level of mediocrity? And if so, what is the explanation?

The Springfield Republican suggests that the reason may be that American literature is primarily a commercial enterprise, that no American author is encouraged to do the kind of work that wins a Nobel prize. That among us "high brow" is a term of derision, and that our immature reading public does not take literature seriously, asking only to be entertained. In other words, even our most talented write, not to please themselves, but—at the commercial publishers' virtual command—write only to please the public. If this very interesting suggestion is well based, it is by itself a sufficient explanation of America's second-rate position in literature. Even the most gifted writer must be entirely free in order to achieve great things.

WORKING SCHOLARSHIPS.

A wider awakening since the war to the actual pecuniary value of a college education and technical training is not the only reason why the colleges all over the country have of late been crowded beyond their capacity. The phenomenon is at least partly explained by the great increase in the number of scholarships, and particularly "working scholarships," provided by alumni and other agencies interested in helping young people to secure a more complete education. According to a report recently issued by the bureau of appointments at Yale University, 51 per cent of the students of that institution earned either part or all of their expenses last year, the total amount earned by Yale's working students in 1920 being given as $112,346.

While the sons of wealth are now living more luxuriously in college than ever before, it is also true that a larger proportion than ever of the young men attending college are working their way through either from necessity or choice. It stands to reason that these latter on the average will derive more benefit from their college courses than the wealthy students or the regular students able to pay all their expenses. The double effort they are making can hardly fail to heighten their appreciation of what they receive and strengthen their determination to make it of permanent value. The helping of poor and ambitious students to help themselves is practical philanthropy of a morally wholesome as well as otherwise fruitful sort.

That "birth control" congress in New York took a different view. The way to secure universal peace, said one speaker, is not to limit armaments but to "persuade all the peoples of the earth to limit their numbers." Populations always have been limited and always will be by natural mortality and innumerable other means. Besides, only a lunatic can seriously argue that a more lowering of its numbers would cause the human race to reform and stop fighting.

In spite of its alleged 300,000,000 sales of dynamite, DuPont has already lost its temporary reputation as the biggest star of war in the heavens. At any rate Prof. Michelson's award of the National Academy of Science that afternoon, the red star in the sky, is found to be an enormous star that is coming right off with DuPont's destruction of a few months.

An unfortunate effort in France which was charged up to the courts the failure to enforce prohibition was the result of the French to Federal Judge Thompson. Nothing daunted, Federal Commissioner Haynes has since attributed to "the spirit of defiance in which the bootlegger holds the law." This sort of thing is more harmful than evasions of an unpopular law. Assault on the courts in the name of prohibition is more to be deplored than such assaults in the name of the Reds.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Where did the gipsy moth come from?
From the Old World. As far back as 1729 Portulaca dispar was recognized as a forest pest. It is found in temperate parts of Asia as far east as Japan, and in Africa is known in Algeria. It is troublesome in France, Germany and Russia and is known, but rare, in England.

2. What are the brown spots found on the under side of fern leaves?
These are the seed vessels. Examined under a reading glass, they show as rather thick shaped crescents, with a bright rusty brown fringe. They stick close to the leaf like the cover to a box. When fully ripe, they spring back and crack and allow the seeds, or spores that have been maturing within, to escape and be blown by the wind.

3. I have recently read that most owls build nests of sticks, or adopt nests of that sort, built for other birds. Is this true? I thought they lived in holes.
Many owls do use nests of sticks. The long eared owl always prefers an open nest, and the great horned owl usually does, often taking that of hawk or crow. The barred owl may take on open nest of sticks, but more commonly uses a tree hole. Screech and barn owls use holes, and make no nest. The short-eared owl lays eggs on the ground.

The U. S. ROYAL CORD TIRE

Unquestionably the outstanding merchandising success of the year—both in the eyes of the trade and of the car-owner.

When the U. S. Royal Cord tires for 1922, they will show U. S. Royal Cord sales nearly doubled over 1920.

What U. S. Tires say and do commands a greater audience than any other line of tires in the world.

Where is the tire dealer headed for in 1922

ALONG about this time of the year the tire-dealer is a much called upon man.

Probably a dozen different "Agencies" for a dozen different tires are hopefully spread before him.

But when he gets off by himself and starts to think he finds out that most so-called Agency Franchises are hardly more than permission to invest his money in this brand or that brand at his own risk.

Consider now—not what is said in behalf of the U. S. Tire Sales and Service Agreement—but what it does.

Consider general conditions for the past year. And note everywhere that U. S. Tire dealers have been the least affected of all.

Observe how generally the U. S. Tire dealer is respected. Not alone by the public but by his local competitors.

The U. S. Tire dealer always knows where he is at. Right now—or in making his plans for 1922.

He can always put his hands on the U. S. consistent merchandising policy.

Where the U. S. Sales Franchise separates from the rest and asserts its prerogatives, are in these things—

It brings to the dealer's store the greatest and most loyal tire-audience anywhere.

It supports the dealer with the most constructive and courageous publicly expressed policies today.

It carries the prestige of the U. S. Royal Cord Tire and the "USCO" Tread.

It is the most sought after Franchise in the whole tire trade.

U. S. dealers will be the ranking tire-merchants of 1922. Not only in profits returned, but in local reputation as business citizens.

Prices on all U. S. Tires and Tubes Reduced Nov. 10th. Ask your dealer.

GET 8 PER CENT ON YOUR MONEY
IF YOU BUY NOW

TOMORROW IT MAY BE TOO LATE.

I have taken an allotment of $50,000 of 7% convertible Gold Debenture Bonds of the Cities Service Company, and am now offering these bonds to the public at a price that will net them 8% on the money invested, of course the price is changeable from day to day, depending on the market price, however, I can give you a firm offering every day at a fixed price for that day. I might add, I do not know of any bond paying even 8% that is in this class as an investment security, as they are a long term bond, valuable conversion privilege, this security is much preferable, in my judgment, to any foreign Government Bonds. The assets of this company on January 10, 1921, was over one hundred and eighty millions of dollars, and the total reserves and surplus on October 10, 1921, were over fifty millions. This company has outstanding seventy-seven millions of cumulative preferred stock, three million four hundred thousand 6% preferred, and forty-six million three hundred and ninety-nine thousand of common stock. All these stocks paying dividends. These bonds, as a security are ahead of all of this stock; the earnings of the Debenture are over seven times the interest requirements on all 7% convertible Gold Debentures part of which I am offering on sale now.

The common stock of the Cities Service Company is now selling above $200 per share.

This lot will not last long and if you want a good sound investment paying you this unusual return of 8% you better send in your application at once.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NINE YEARS OLD.

"I'm nine years old today," chirped the canary bird. "That is a pretty good age for a canary bird, too. I believe I am to have a special piece of crisp lettuce and a new piece of cattle fish bone as birthday presents."

"When, too, I've heard that I was to have a bite of an apple, also. Ah, yes it is fine to be nine years old."

"My mistress has been saying for some time that when today came it would be my ninth birthday."

"How good she is to me. I haven't been able to see for the past year or so. I found myself seeing things less clearly and less clearly."

"Finally I couldn't see anything. But I was very happy. For I had my dear mistress and my happy home, and I could hear her voice and I had my own voice to make me happy."

"I get so much pleasure out of my singing. Ah, yes, I am very happy with my music. I do not mean to be conceited when I say that I get so much pleasure out of my singing."

"I don't mean to be conceited at all. But I do get a great deal of pleasure out of music, and the music I have is my own voice."

"I sing almost all the time. If my mistress uses the sewing machine, I like it, for I enjoy the sound of it. I like noise and merriment and gaiety."

"I like the sound of the water being poured into the glasses before the meals. That always makes me sing."

"Of course, since I have not been able to see I couldn't tell whether it was day or night, and at night I have sometimes awakened and have commenced to sing."

"Then my mistress has said: 'Thank!' And I have stopped at once."

"I know then that it is night and that she is telling me that I mustn't sing. In the summer we go away and we board at a big boarding house."

"Then my mistress is afraid I may sometimes be complained of, and so I am very careful to stop and listen before I go on with my real song, to make sure whether or not I am singing too early in the morning."

"You see in boarding houses birds and dogs and children are very apt to be complained of if they make any noise at all. Boarding house people somehow are very fussy. I don't know why, but that is a fact."

"Now I suppose I should have spoken of children first and dogs second and birds third. But I forgot."

"At any rate, I am glad I am always up and away in the summer with my mistress, even if we have to be a bit more careful."

"I would hate to be left with strangers, for I do depend on my mistress so much."

"I need her so and I feel so safe and happy with her, for I know that she will look after me."

"I can feel my way about my cage, of course, and sometimes she takes me out and pets me, and I sit on her finger and she kisses the top of my head."

"She Takes Me Out."

"Then I give her a few pecks, too—my mistress always kisses me."

"Oh, yes, she kisses me all night or all day, depending on the night. I don't know why, but that is a fact."

"When it is night, she says 'Hush!' to me and orders and kisses me several times right after another."

"I put back on my perch. Then I put my head under my wing, which, of course, is the way I sleep. And next I put my head out for a moment and I hear her say: 'Good, Dicky. That's right!'"

"Then I know that she means it is really bedtime and I go to sleep then."

"Naturally, when I have been awake all day I am sleepy, and most of the night I sleep right through until early morning, but sometimes I start to sing because I do not feel so sleepy and because I am not sure whether it is daylight or not."

"But I am good, and I stop right away when I hear the word 'Hush!'"

"I love to try out my little new notes and trills, and then when I have my song all ready I like to sing it with all my little bird heart."

"Yes, I'm nine years old, and I've had nine happy years of bird life, and expect to have a number more."

ECONOMICAL IDEAS AND DISHES.

All liquids in which vegetables are boiled should be saved, except perhaps potato water, and that is good for bread and is used in setting buck-wheat cakes. This vegetable water is rich in mineral matters, which have been dissolved in cooking the vegetable. When possible, use it in making sauces to be served with the vegetable, or in gravies, instead of plain boiling water.

In cooking the succulent green vegetables, like peas, spinach or greens of any kind, avoid adding salt until ready to serve, as salt toughens the vegetables and makes them less digestible. When peas or corn lack sweetness, add a teaspoonful of sugar to the vegetable while cooking, do not overdo the sweetening or the result will be unpleasant.

By combining vegetables with meat, the meat may be extended and the vegetables nicely seasoned. Take a pound of a good cut of mutton, cut it into serving sized pieces and brown well on all sides, seasoning well. Add a cupful of diced carrot, or more as one likes, a finely minced onion and potatoes cut into small pieces; add water, boiling hot, and cook, tightly covered, on the back of the stove for two or three hours.

Potato muffins are prepared by filling well greased muffin pans with mashed potato and baking until brown. Slip out of the muffin pans and garnish a platter of fish with the potato muffins and sprigs of parsley and lemon.

Hot Water Pastry.—Take one cupful of lard, one-half cupful of boiling water, one teaspoonful of salt and, when well mixed, stir in three cupfuls of flour. Mix well and set away on ice to chill. Roll out as usual. This makes pastry for two covered pies and one crust.

Prune Salad.—Soak one-half pound of prunes over night and then simmer until tender. When cool, pit them and stuff with walnut meats. Shred a bunch of lettuce, make nests and on each place four or five prunes. Cover with mayonnaise and serve.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story
Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

Jim explained to the actress why he could not accept a position as regular member of her company. "My uncle left me $3,000,000 in his will, on condition that a get a new job every two days."

"But you must stretch the point this time. I want you here a few weeks."

"I'll stay the few weeks, if I do the chameleon stunt, change my job every so often. If you are willing, I could do that easily enough." He went on to explain his scheme of making the most—in the way of varying jobs, during his stay at the theater, and because she had taken a liking to him, Miss Chase promised to let him have whatever job he desired. "You will be good company and I am lonesome, so far from the gay white way," she added, with a merry laugh.

His first assignment was as stage hand. Miss Chase herself explained his duties to him. "It's rather a difficult play we are putting on the first part of the week. We are doing two a week, you know. The stage hands have enough to do shifting scenery and arranging the props, to mind passing some of their tasks over to you. Suppose you pull the curtain on the right wing, and make the thunder during the storm scene."

She showed him the drum and urged him to practice rolling it. "John will show you," she continued, waving her hand towards one of the stage hands. "For the loud crashes of thunder, shake this zinc sheet that is hanging here on the wall. We are not up-to-date, but we get results just the same."

Jim did not need much instruction to pull the curtain. It was balanced by heavy sang bags, and all he had to do was to pull in unison with the man in the left wing, to lift the curtain, and to hold back when lowering it. He found the stage effect and curtain cues on a chart that was hung in the wings.

The company was a third-rate repertoire company, with the leading woman practically the only member of the cast who could act. But the play was one that they had given many times, and so the performance went off with fair smoothness.

It was all new to Jim, and he watched the scenes from the wings with great interest, almost forgetting to lower the curtain at the "tag"—the final speech. On the second morning Miss Chase met Jim with a smile of regret.

"It never rains but it pours. A group of New York friends have telegraphed that they will be held in town tonight for a few days' stay. They will demand all my spare time, but you'll get along all right."

"You've been kind enough to me already."

The New York people came. They filled two boxes and were loud in their applause of the star. After the second act she was called to the front and received baskets of flowers which were lifted over the footlights. The actress was bowing, and kissing her fingers to the audience when the curtain began to descend.

Jim thought the fellow on the other side must know what he was doing so he let the curtain slide down—down. Miss Chase continued to smile and bow, until the curtain was directly over her head. Jim tried to stop its descent, but it was too late. With all his strength he was powerless, for the man across was working against him, and the curtain was heavy.

"Look out!" he cried in alarm. With the utmost unconcern, the actress stepped back, bowing, just as the curtain fell with a dull thud.

"You needn't have worried," she called to Jim. "I knew just when to retire."

Choice Cuts
—and Others

A few months ago a newspaper man visited one of the wholesale markets of Swift & Company. He wanted to see a retailer buy a short loin of beef and then watch the retailer sell the porterhouse and sirloin steaks from it over his counter. He thought this would make a good story.

The head of the market took the reporter into the "cooler" where he showed him a high class side of beef. With a wooden skewer he marked off the short loin and said, "That is only 8 per cent of the weight of the whole side and it is selling for four times as much as this piece (and he marked off the "chuck," which is about one-fourth of the side of beef)."

The wide variation in the wholesale price of various cuts from the same side of beef is caused largely by demand for the so-called choicer cuts. The others are, of course, just as wholesome.

It seems as though more people than ever are demanding choicer cuts, and their demand sets the price. If few people ask for the forequarter cuts, the price of forequarters will automatically drop to a figure low enough to induce people to buy because of cheapness.

Even though certain cuts sell for relatively high prices, other cuts, due to lack of demand, sell so low that our profit from all sources over a period of five years averaged only a fraction of a cent a pound.

It is competition between consumers for the choicer cuts that keeps prices for those cuts relatively high; an equalizing demand for all parts of the carcass would benefit producer, packer, retailer and consumer.

Our average wholesale selling price of all products has fallen about 40 per cent since September 1920.

KELLYS WEDDED FIFTY YEARS

Former Kingstonians Centre of Big Celebration in Brooklyn—Gifts Include $1,000 Purse of Gold.

(Contributed.)

With appropriate religious ceremonies at St. Agatha's Church, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn on Saturday, November 26, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kelly, former residents of this city but now of Brooklyn, entered upon the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedded life. Mindful of the many favors and blessings with which God blessed every link of the golden chain of fifty years which bound them together as sharers in each others sorrows and joys, and appreciation thereof, their first act of the day was to approach the altar with that simple child-like, guileless faith which they as children imbibed amidst the hallowed hills of holy Ireland, and these in the Divine Presence. In the presence of one of Christ's Ambassadors—the rector of the church—and amidst an awestricken, grateful and admiring congregation they repeated those solemn, sacred promises that were fifty years before pronounced by them in St. Mary's Church, Kingston, N. Y., November 26, 1871.

After this they pledged a continuance of that holy fidelity that so characterized their fifty years of married life, and pledged it unto, and hoped for its continuance eternal in the great beyond, and having assisted at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, they withdrew to the home of their daughter, Mrs. Chas. Fanning, 649 Forty-Ninth street, where midst a display of fitting decorations, and surrounded by appropriate merriment they sat with their great big family circle of children, grand-children and great-grand-children, the priests of the parish and other relatives and friends to partake of a regular golden jubilee breakfast.

After breakfast the day was spent in receiving friends and well-wishers and in the evening a banquet was tendered the happy couple in St. Agatha's Parish Hall, where their many friends met to offer congratulations, and spend an evening of social enjoyment. May it be said in conclusion that the union of this dear old couple, formerly Michael Kelly and Mary O'Brien of Tipperary, who now already have seen three-quarters of a century of years, and half a century of married life was blessed with a family of nine children, twenty grand-children and one great-grand-child. Of the nine children born of the union three are dead, Philip, Alice and Mrs. William Fox. Those living are as follows: Four daughters, Mrs. Charles Fanning, Mrs. John Gessner, Mrs. Thomas Anderson and Miss Julia Kelly, and two sons, Thomas and William, all of whom reside in Brooklyn, but were formerly residents of this city.

Mr. Kelly, the groom of fifty years ago is a son of the late Thomas Kelly, who for many years conducted a wholesale and retail butcher business on lower Broadway, Rondout and is the only survivor of a family of eight, his brothers, Captain Thomas and Philip J. and his sisters, Miss Bridget Kelly, Mrs. Peter Kearney, Mrs. Martin J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Thomas Leonard, all of Kingston and Mrs. John Mulvey of Hoboken, N. J., having long since gone to their reward. Representatives of each of these families were present at the golden jubilee.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were the recipients of many costly and valuable presents, among them being a thousand dollar purse of gold. The best wishes of their many Kingston friends for happiness here and hereafter are cordially extended to them.

FLOODS MENACE OHIO VALLEY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Pittsburgh, Nov. 29.—Seventy-two hours of almost continuous rain, succeeded in some localities by a heavy fall of snow, which rapidly melted, brought a score of rivers and large streams in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia to dangerous flood stages by noon today. Reports from many towns, which are either already partly submerged or in danger of being flooded, showed that everywhere the rushing waters are slowly rising.

Heavy damage is being done everywhere but so far there have been no deaths reported.

The Monongahela river has risen to unusual stages on its headwaters in West Virginia to its junction with the Allegheny at Pittsburgh.

The Allegheny river, one of the tributaries of the Ohio, is still rising. Numerous towns above Pittsburgh are beginning to be flooded. These are steel industrial towns.

From Pittsburgh to Parkersburg, W. Va., the Ohio river is on mad torrent and its waters rising steadily but a little more slowly now. Half a hundred towns down the Ohio, it is predicted, will be in a serious condition by midnight. Wheeling apparently will suffer the worst and a large part of the business and residential section will be under water if the United States weather bureau's forecast of a 36-foot stage is realized.

In Pittsburgh the lower part of the old city of Allegheny is flooded and the waters are spreading out farther and farther back in the residential section.

At The Theatres.

The fine things said about "Over The Hill" by the New York press proved true as the opening of this delightful story showed at the Opera House yesterday, where through the rain hundreds turned out to see the story of a mother love divine. It will be shown three times daily until Saturday.

Keeney's tonight, Wallace Reid in "Too Much Speed." Mr. Reid is seen as Dusty Rhodes, the speeding king and his terrific driving fairly sizes across the screen. Wednesday the special production of "Straight Is The Way," the tale of the greatest battle earth knows, the good against the bad in the human heart.

Maurice Flynn in "Bucking the Line," is the attraction at the Auditorium tonight. It is an exciting tale of adventure and romance. Also Eddie Polo in the pirate serial, "Do or Die."

At the Colonial Theatre tonight Florence Reed in the Ziegfeld production, "The Black Panther's Cub," will be seen for the last time. The theatre was well filled Monday afternoon and evening and all who saw the picture were well pleased. Larry Seamon in a very funny comedy is also shown in "The Bell Hop."

The president, Mrs. Phoebe McLean, asks all who are not intending to cook the chicken they are going to furnish, to deliver same at her home on Wednesday, December 7th, as early in the day as possible. Of course, those who bring the chicken cooked will deliver them the day of the fair.

It will be open to anyone over sixteen years of age and will be conducted by Miss Alice Conway from National Headquarters. All who are interested will be welcome regardless of any idea of future connection with the work. Registration may be made with Miss Martha H. Davis, 74 John street, or evenings, 207 Wall street, and Miss Ruth Schaffer, Kingston High School.

Members of the Esopus Ladies' Aid Society are busily engaged at present making preparations for the annual church fair which will be held in the very near future.

The fair and supper lately held by the P. O. E. of A. was very satisfactory to the organization from both a social and financial viewpoint.

51 CHILDREN
WERE DEPENDENT

The work of the Ulster County Committee of the State Charities Aid Association for the year ending September 30th, 1921, as will be seen from the report of our county agent, Miss Martha M. Davis, was very satisfactory. In his report which, with that of Miss Davis was presented to the board of supervisors Monday evening, President Higginson expressed the hope that the board will see fit to increase its appropriation for the work of the committee to $2,400. The appropriation is now $1,200.

Miss Davis's report shows that there were in September 51 children dependent upon the county and the city of Kingston and that the agency was supervising 57 children, six being in free homes.

The total number of children supported by public funds during the past year was 104.

Twenty-six of the children dependent, it was expected eventually to place with parents or relatives in their own homes but the other twenty-five were problems to be worked out in each instance as circumstances and investigation disclosed a way.

The report of Treasurer N. H. Fessenden showed a balance on hand of $186.81 after expenditures of $2,721.70 had been made. The proceeds of the Charity Ball amounting to $190.36 were used as a special fund and expended for travel, salary, telephone and stationery.

ST. JAMES'S MEN'S CLUB.

Over Eighty Present At First Formal Meeting.

The first formal meeting of the Men's Club of the St. James Church was held last evening and was an unqualified success in every way. Over eighty men were present, a large percentage for such weather. After a most telling address by Dr. Seelye on the place and work of the Men's Club in a church organization, the various committees organized, each selecting its own chairmen. After this abundant refreshments were served by the newly appointed stewards. The prophecy of a good time was fulfilled to the letter, the men tarrying for music and conversation until a late hour. The spirit of the organization is fine and the enthusiasm runs high. Due to the fact that the last Monday in December comes on the day after Christmas, it was voted that the next meeting be held on Friday, December 30th.

THE BOYSON CASE.

Another Adjournment Taken Pending Motion Monday.

The trial of Walter L. Boyson, coach of the Albany High School football team, was again adjourned Monday evening in police court here until December 28. The attorney for Boyson stated that there was a motion pending before Justice Hinman at Albany to send the case to the Ulster county grand jury for consideration. The case was to have been tried Monday evening before a jury who were present in court. Boyson is charged with assaulting Officer Martin during a rumble at the football game between Kingston and Albany at the Athletic Field here.

FOREIGN POWERS
MUST PAY DEBTS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 29.—The United States has put a final quietus on suggestions from foreign sources for cancellations of allied bills to this government, amounting now to about $11,000,000,000, including accrued interest. Authorized statements today from leading administration spokesmen left no further doubt that such appeals will meet with this government's disfavor, and, if made officially, they will be rejected firmly and promptly.

The statement made today from one of the most reliable of government sources, repeated on earlier declaration from the White House that cancellation of the debts is a thing "inconceivable" at this or any future time.

RURAL SCHOOL CONFERENCE HELD

Editor, The Freeman:

The joint committee on Rural Schools popularly known as the committee of 21, held a conference in the court house, Poughkeepsie, on Saturday. This was advertised as a farmers' conference at which the committee was to sit and hear from the rural residents what they desired in regard to education.

There was a large attendance covering Dutchess, Ulster, Greene and Columbia counties, though the farmers were conspicuous by their absence, those present being mainly educationists.

Most of the time was occupied by the committee telling what they had done and intended to do. From a statement by R. P. Snyder of the Department of Education, it appears that our district schools have been placed in the hands of the efficiency experts who have produced a score card to be used on the schools exactly as is now done with the barns of milk producers. Not only is the lighting, heating and ventilation looked after, but the superficial feet of playground and gymnastic exercises are all taken care of even down to the amount of dust that is raised by a pupil going from his seat to the blackboard. All this and much more was elaborated by Mr.

Snyder who was evidently satisfied that the experts and the committee had fully earned the money all this has cost.

A splendid address by H. W. Colingwood, editor of the Rural New Yorker, opened the afternoon session, in which he laid stress on the necessity of making education fit the pupil for the world's work, rather than for the present notion that an education relieves one from the necessity of getting a living by manual labor.

Prof. G. A. Works of the State College of Agriculture, gave a most graphic description of various experiences of the committee, together with some of the recommendations they intend to make, and it is to those I desire the attention of school trustees as well as all the taxpayers, urban and rural.

Starting with the assertion that the country had been entitled to a high school education as well as the city had, the professor soon had high schools located all over the country districts drawing pupils from all around. In this scheme, which he had a specially colored map to illustrate, district, township and even county lines are to be wiped out. Automobile will bring the pupils to school and take them home. There must be no potential president helping his father do the chores in Moccumbus or Balsam Swamp who shall not have the privilege of an education that will show him how to get a living without working.

And the cost of all this. Oh, that is easy. The committee has thought that all out, and the experience of the defunct township bill has given wisdom to steer clear of any such snags again. So the districts will pay an equalized part, while the state will make up the remainder. Commission on commission is to be appointed to look after all this and then still more commissions, but as we do not live in the state, the expense need not bother us.

Sufficient has been said to show that the same forces behind the township bill are again at work and it is up to the rural people to decide if they are to be taken in again with this specious bait. The solicitude of these educationalists for us farmers is to put it mildly, somewhat disconcerting.

SUTLIFF GIVES A BRIDGE PARTY

Sutliff, Inc., local agent for the Packard automobile in Ulster and Dutchess counties, was host Monday evening at a dinner given at Cuneo's Lake Katrine Inn to officials of the Packard Motor Company of New York and to the visiting newspapermen who are here incident to the opening of the Rondout creek bridge.

Roy M. Sutliff, of Sutliff, Inc., acted as toastmaster and showed as much "pep" in conducting the dinner as though he were selling a Packard Twin-Six. The Packard officials and newspaper men motored up from New York city Monday afternoon in Packard Twin-Sixes furnished by the Packard Motor Car Company. After being welcomed to Kingston by Edward Hungerford, the party proceeded to get down to business and do justice to a chicken dinner served with all the trimmings, in a style that has made Cuneo's Lake Katrine Inn famous.

During the serving of the dinner short talks were given by the guests and the Dixie Trio entertained. Balfe's orchestra furnished the music which helped keep the party in good spirits and at the close of the dinner Mr. Sutliff sprung the surprise of the evening, when Miss Marian Saunders, soloist and dancer, was introduced. Miss Saunders immediately became a favorite with the Kingston as well as the New York people and during the evening gave several numbers. Bert Andrews, novelty juggler, musician and dancer, gave several clever numbers.

It was near midnight before the party, which numbered about forty, departed for Kingston. Before their departure a tribute was paid to Sutliff, Inc., and to Roy Sutliff for the splendid entertainment and hospitality extended.

Included in the party were several of the officials and department managers of the Packard Motor Car Company who took this opportunity to pay a visit to Sutliff, Inc., one of their most progressive agents, and at the same time witness the ceremonies at the opening of the Rondout Creek Bridge.
